A Surprise in Store for Him. From Texas Siftings. "Papa, mamma wants you to come home right off." said a small boy tugging at the coat of a convivialist who was drinking with his boon companions in a Harlem sa-

"What does she want of me?" asked the convivialist.
"She doesn't want anything from you; she wants to give you something.'

In the Country Newspaper Office. From the New York Recorder, "I guess we'd better get out a world's fair edition, Jim."

"Great Scott! Isn't the fair too much of has-been now?" "That's nothing. I've bought a half-bushel of old cuts from the type-metal folks cheap. Let's show our readers that we've got some enterprise."

No-I say Yes; all forms and the worst cases. After 30 years' study and experiment I have found the remedy .- Epilepsy is cured by it; cured. not subdued by opiates—the old, treacherous, quack treatment. Do not despair. Forget past impositions on your purse, past outrages on your confidence, past failures. Look forward, not backward. My remedy is of today. Valuable work on the subject and large bottle of the remedy-

McMillin, Benton, Tenn., 1115 G n.w. The Debate Opened by Speaker Crisp. It was determined to limit the speeches to five minutes, and Speaker Crisp was accorded the floor to open the proceedings. He declared that it was the duty of the members of the democratic party to stand together in support of the tariff measure reported by the committee on ways and means, and recalled promises and pledges of the past to the public in regard to this matter. He said President Cleveland and the democratic majority in Congress had been elected for the purpose of carrying out the will of the people expressed at the polls in 1892 upon the Chicago platform, and he urged united action by the majority. "If any man objects to the promises of the bill," he said, "let him state his objections on the floor in open debate, and then if he cannot support the bill, he can vote against it." He protested against the policy of tearing the measure to pieces in caucus, and closed by offering a resolution pledging the majority to a support of the bill. The Speaker was loudly applauded as he took his seat. Gen. Sickles of New York, one of the twelve democratic members from that state who were present, followed in the same strain.

He said that he did not mean to express any hostility to the income tax, but it was such a serious matter that it needed to be carefully handled before being adopted into the legislation of the country.

Mr. Warner was emphatic in his opinion

Mr. Warner was emphatic in his opinion hat enough time was to be wasted in talk. For his own part, a vote on the bill could not be reached too soon. He had received, he party had properly had proved the ways and means committee had instead brought in a bill which came as near to free trade as it dared to go. In addition to this, it proposed to add an income tax proposition as a rider to the tariff bill, and he could not assent to such a proposition.

Speaker Crisp thereupon again took the floor. He referred to the manner in which amendments to the McKinley bill had been proposed and adopted while that measure was pending in the Fifty-first Congress. He said he did not believe that there would be any ground for complaint on the part of democrats at the course of the committee on ways and means with respect to the internal revenue features to be proposed. In accordance with the suggestions that had been made he would accept an amendment to his resolutions which had been introduced at the beginning of the caucus, providing for additional time in which the income tax might be discussed.

The Sugar Tax Touched on. brief speech, closing with a motion to abolish the bounty and put a tariff of 1 cent a pound on raw sugar. This brought Mr. Robertson of Louisiana to his feet with an amendment placing a duty of 1 1-2 cents a pound on raw sugar and 15-8 cents a pound on refined sugar. Mr. Robertson advocated this plan. He said he had come caucus last night. There was considerable speechmaking, and a few of those who are dissatisfied with the provisions of the Wilson bill gave expression to their discontent, but no action whatever was taken on the reform. "Resolved, That it is the duty of every democratic member of the House to attend the daily sessions, and we hereby express the opinion that those members who are absent owe it to the party and those of us here to return in order that pressing public business may be attended to."

Cockran then pointed out what he deemed to be the undesirable features of the proposed legislation. Mr. Cockran spoke in his accustomed impassioned manner and at the close of his remarks he was given a round of applause. Mr. Outhwaite of Ohio, a member of the committee on rules was the part speaker Crisp, and urged the members to lay aside their differences and personal prejudices and rally to the support of the committee on ways and means in their effort to meet the just expectations of the people. Mr. Outhwaite evidently struck a popular chord, for he was also greeted with

From the New York Times. It has been suggested by the London Lancet that trained nurses be employed on the ocean steamers as stewardesses. Any one who has experienced the comfort of having trained hands "handle them" when "too ill to raise the head," will hope that just "how to do" and "what to do" for

The death of a beautiful little girl from The death of a beautiful little girl from pneumonia on an ocean steamship last summer raised the question among a party of passengers, "Would not a trained nurse have done differently, and, perhaps, saved the little life?" Nursing is two-thirds the cure, especially in quick diseases, like pneumonia. Delicate persons who take the voyage for health would certainly appreciate the trained assistance.
